Description

I have several users which complains about the current state of the layers panel. They feel that it is difficult to control how to move a layer in the layers panel.

When I move a layer ontop of another layers name/text, it will be dropped below that layer.
When I move a layer ontop of a group, it will be dropped into that group.
When I move a layer ontop of another layers styling, nothing will happen.

I think it would be much easier/more intuitive to drag and drop layers if dropping on the styling of a layer will make the dragged layer drop below that layer.
