| I found the way to put points in a line at equidistant (in map units), and I think it is great!. But why not go feather? It would be helpful to label those points with the actual distance. I hope you understand me. I upload an simple example. Thanks! |           |                                                 |
