Description

I am on OS X 10.10 and have QGis 2.8 installed.

I am having a customized CRS and I want to create graticules for that CRS.
The graticules I created the following.

Set Projection of Project to WGS 84
Create a VectorGird with the extend of my layer which the graticules are supposed to cover
Densify the Geometry

Then I set the Projection of my project back to my custom CRS.

In the Crint Composer, all looks good.
But, when saving the image as .jpg, .png or .pdf - I am getting some weird lines...

Maybe I should notice that I am using the Plug In "Clip to Hemisphere" to process my layer which the graticules are supposed to cover.
Using that Plug In, I have to uncheck for each layer in my project "Simplify geometry", otherwise it gets displayed weird.

Can you please share your project file too? I need this to test with your custom CRS.

I think you might need to run the 'clip to hemisphere' on the graticule layer too.

Nope. I run the "Clip to Hemisphere" only on the worldmap.

Then in WGS82 I create the graticule layer, densify geomtry on that layer and finally set the projection to my cutom CRS.
