QGIS Application - Feature request #13213 CSR selector should provide contextual help

2015-08-12 03:29 PM - Michael Kirk

Priority: Normal Assignee: Category: Category: No Pull Request or Patch shapplied: Resolution: Easy fix?: No Copied to github as #: 21274 Properties dialog When I right click on a layer and choose properties Then I see the layer properties dialog When I right click on a layer and choose properties Then I are on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" Then I are on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! Cal's can't find help for this form. The help file for QasGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly CRS transformation. You can the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project or projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of for centy used coordinate systems will be available on the fly CRS ID The for the current projectin for the current projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and c	Assignee:	Normal
Category: Pull Request or Patch shapplied: Resolution: Easy fix?: No Copled to github as #: 21274 Description When I right click on a layer and choose properties Copled to github as #: 21274 When I right click on a layer and choose properties Free state in the intervention of the current project and enable on the fly transformation. For use on the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable on the fly CRS transformation. To use on the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable on the fly CRS transformation. To use on the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable on the fly CRS transformation. To use on the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable on the fly CRS transformation. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the CGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	-
Pull Request or Patch shapplied: Resolution: Easy fix?: No Copied to github as #: 21274 Description When I right click on a layer and choose properties Easy fix?: No When I right click on a layer and choose properties Then I see the layer properties dialog When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" Men I press the "Help Button" Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help Goordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The current project and enable on the fly CRS transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable on the fly CRS Transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) From the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for Easy fix?: No Copied to github as #: 21274 Description When I right click on a layer and choose properties When I right click on a layer and choose properties Status When I right click on a layer and choose properties Status When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The corrent project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable on the fly CRS Transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can flid a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. <t< th=""><th>Category:</th><th></th><th></th></t<>	Category:
Description When I right click on a layer and choose properties Then I see the layer properties dialog When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly 'CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly 'CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button.	Pull Request or F	Patch swipplied:	Resolution:
 When I right click on a layer and choose properties Then I see the layer properties dialog When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	Easy fix?:	No	Copied to github as #: 21274
Then I see the layer properties dialog When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	Description
Then I see the layer properties dialog When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for
 When I press the "Select CRS" button Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for OgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	-
Then I am on the "Coordinate Reference System Selector" Dialog And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	-
And I see a contextual "Help Button" When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	When I press the "	Select CRS" button
 When I press the "Help Button" Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	Then I am on the "	Coordinate Reference System Selec	tor" Dialog
Then I see: Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	And I see a contex	tual "Help Button"
 Oops! QGIS can't find help for this form. The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	When I press the "	Help Button"
The help file for QgsGenericProjectionSelector was not found for your language If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	Then I see:
If you would like to create it, contact the QGIS development team Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	Oops! QGIS ca	an't find help for this form.
Especially as someone new to GIS, this would be helpful. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	The help file fo	r QgsGenericProjectionSelector wa	s not found for your language dialog which reads: Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	If you would	like to create it, contact the QGIS de	evelopment team
 Coordinate Reference System (CRS) Tab The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	Especially as some	eone new to GIS, this would be help	ul. There is some similar help text in a section within the "System Properties" help
 The Coordinate Reference System (CRS) tab allows you to set the projection for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for 	dialog which reads	:
for the current project and enable on the fly transformation. You do not need to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	Coordinate Ref	erence System (CRS) Tab to have a saved project to setup and enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation. To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	The Coordinate	e Reference System (CRS) tab allow	vs you to set the projection
To use 'on the fly' CRS transformation, click the Enable 'on the fly' CRS transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	for the curren	nt project and enable on the fly trans	formation. You do not need transformation check box. Then choose the projection for the project (map canvas) from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	to have a sav	ved project to setup and enable 'on t	he fly' CRS transformation.
from the list of Geographic or Projected coordinate systems. You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	To use 'on the	fly' CRS transformation, click the Er	able 'on the fly' CRS
You can find a coordinate system by entering its name, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	transformation	on check box. Then choose the proje	ection for the project (map canvas)
and clicking the Find button. The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	from the list of	of Geographic or Projected coordina	te systems.
The list of recently used coordinate systems will be available on the bottom for	You can find a	coordinate system by entering its na	ime, EPSG code or the QGIS ID and clicking	the Find button.
quick access.	The list of rece	ntly used coordinate systems will be	available on the bottom for quick access	3.

Associated revisions

Revision 40500d60 - 2015-08-13 02:46 AM - Nathan Woodrow

Merge pull request #2243 from michaelkirk/feature/crs_help

Fix #13213 - Feature/crs help

History

#1 - 2015-08-12 05:39 PM - Michael Kirk

PR: https://github.com/qgis/QGIS/pull/2243

#2 - 2015-08-12 05:46 PM - Nathan Woodrow

- Status changed from Open to Closed

Fixed in changeset commit:"40500d6080b1427a937905a57c5d12250485900f".