Description

Identify Results panel has lots of buttons, including "view feature form" and "copy feature to the clipboard" buttons, but misses the "Toggle feature selection" button, which allows to add feature to current selection right out of the identify results panel. This tool is very handy when selecting a one particular feature out of many overlapping ones. Although it's present in the context menu of the identified feature, it'll be great to have it as a button on the panel itself, and ideally a hotkey for it to speed things up even more.
