Description

I am requesting for this based on "Bug report #14732: @user_full_name and @user_account_name causes Crashes". I know a lot of organizations wanting to have an open source migration will be considering this too. The feature is basically one which updates or creates a field for the username of the logged in user. I am aware of the @user_full_name variable but this feature will do this on the fly as a feature is created or updated. More like the way time-stamps work.

Thanks
