Please test with QGIS 3.4 - QGIS 2.18 reached it's end of life.

Still applies to 3.5.

It's because you are saving as JPG, which does not support opacity. Try PNG instead.

That means that a bigger than paper rendering with "crop to content" is not desirable for some formats. Might be worth mentioning this somewhere.

So it's a documentation issue?

Maybe (see <https://github.com/qgis/QGIS-Documentation/pull/3483>) but I'm not convinced that people ever read docs and, the layout component is the part of QGIS where no help button is available, not a single one. So for doc visibility...
I thought about a warning message (in bar?) but no idea when to raise it, nor whether it's better.
