Description
Let's say I have multiple layers with similar tables/fields and I would like to create one or more atlas with tables showing some of the attributes (with proper formatting and other rule based values); As soon as I change the vector layer all the attributes settings are discarded and all the attributes are displayed. What I would like to have is a way to save and reload the attributes configuration, so it takes less time to restore a table the way I want it.
