Description  When removing columns in attribute table, all following columns move left and it works ok. Then, if I rollback the changes, the restored columns should be inserted back.  It works for the header as well as data rows above and below the current view. However, data rows within the current view aren't refreshed. The values previously moved left stay left, and following columns are filled with null.  Closing and reopening the attribute table is the only way to refresh the displayed values.  See also #7169.
