Description

enable data defined rotation -> ok

then enable data defined position -> labels become horizontal

then

move manually one label -> label is rotated

It is not a regression as in 1.8 there was a similar issue, it is anyway or a bug or a not intuitive way to work, user side obviously :)

Is there anyway to have all the labels automatically rotated after enabling the data defined position? if yes, is this case documented?

cheers!

History

#1 - 2013-06-24 05:42 AM - Paolo Cavallini

- Subject changed from labels data defined rotation does not work if data defined poistion is set(?) to labels data defined rotation does not work if data defined position is set(?)

#2 - 2014-06-04 12:28 AM - Giovanni Manghi

- Target version set to Future Release - High Priority

- Subject changed from labels data defined rotation does not work if data defined position is set(?) to labels data defined rotation does not work if data defined position is set

- Priority changed from Normal to High another consequence of this issue is that without defining the data defined position for labels the labels are correctly rotated but the rotation tool does not work.
